

LOS ANGELES DODGERS

The Hall of Fame's collection of more than 40,000 artifacts tell the stories of the game's legendary players, moments and triumphs. Each team's Starting Nine features a lineup of the must-see artifacts on display in the Museum representing each of the 30 current MLB franchises.

	ARTIFACT	POSITION
1	GIL HODGES GRAND SLAM BAT	BASEBALL TIMELINE: 1930-1970
2	DON DRYSDALE RECORD-SETTING BALLS	BASEBALL TIMELINE: 1930-1970
3	CLAYTON KERSHAW 2013 SEASON SHOES	WHOLE NEW BALLGAME
4	SANDY KOUFAX 1965 CY YOUNG AWARD	ONE FOR THE BOOKS
5	SHAWN GREEN FOUR HOME RUN BAT	ONE FOR THE BOOKS
6	OREL HERSHISER 1988 WS FINAL OUT BALL	AUTUMN GLORY
7	COREY SEAGER WORLD SERIES BAT	AUTUMN GLORY
8	CODY BELLINGER ROOKIE SEASON JERSEY	YOUR TEAM TODAY
9	JACKIE ROBINSON HALL OF FAME PLAQUE	PLAQUE GALLERY

1	With bases loaded in the top of the fifth inning on August 1, 1957, Gil Hodges swung this bat to hit his 13th career grand slam, an NL record at the time. During his 16 seasons with the Dodgers, the first baseman helped Brooklyn win the 1955 World Series and, after the franchise's move to Los Angeles, claim the 1959 World Championship.
2	Sporting Dodger Blue his entire 14-year big league career, Don Drysdale's 1968 season was one for the books. The hurler threw his record-setting sixth straight shutout on June 4, and then passed Walter Johnson on June 8 with 56 1/3 consecutive scoreless innings before his streak ended at 58 2/3 later that game. These baseballs are from those historic games.
3	Clayton Kershaw wore these shoes in 2013 when he led the National League with 232 strikeouts and topped the big leagues with a 1.83 ERA. The Dodgers southpaw earned his second Cy Young Award that season for his work on the mound.
4	Sandy Koufax mowed down batters in the 1965 season, striking out 382 and setting a modern big league record (since broken). The Dodgers southpaw also led the big leagues with 27 complete games and a 2.04 ERA en route to earning this Cy Young Award.
5	Shawn Green swung this bat on May 23, 2002, to not only hit four homers, but also a single and a double, accruing a single-game record of 19 total bases. The Dodgers right fielder continued to use this bat to hit three more home runs over the next two games until it broke, ultimately tallying a record seven round-trippers in three days.
6	In the bottom of the ninth inning of Game 5 of the 1988 World Series, Los Angeles hurler Orel Hershiser threw this ball past Oakland's Tony Phillips to end the game and secure the sixth modern championship in Dodgers history. On the strength of two complete games, 17 total strikeouts and a 1.00 ERA, Hershiser was named the Series MVP.
7	During the 2020 World Series against Tampa Bay, LA's Corey Seager scored seven runs, drove in five and batted .400 en route to winning the Series MVP. The shortstop swung this bat in the sixth inning of Game 6 to tally the go-ahead run that ultimately secured the franchise's seventh modern World Championship.
8	Cody Bellinger wore this jersey on August 5, 2017, when he hit his 31st homer of the season. Bellinger led the Dodgers with 39 home runs (a then-NL rookie record), 97 RBI and 87 runs scored en route to being named the National League Rookie of the Year.
9	On April 15, 1947, Jackie Robinson changed baseball forever when he broke the color line. When he was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1962, Robinson's plaque only stated his playing abilities and made no mention the role he played in reintegration. In 2008, with the permission of his family, this new plaque was cast to reflect his contributions as a trailblazer.

More information on Starting Nine artifacts for all 30 teams is available on your mobile device at baseballhall.org/nine

Major League Baseball trademarks and copyrights are used with permission of Major League Baseball. Visit MLB.com.
 I LOVE NEW YORK is a registered trademark and service mark of the New York State Department of Economic Development; used with permission.